

Martin Luther King Jr.

His headstone said free at last, free at last.
But death is a slave's freedom.
We seek the freedom of free men.

The construction of a world where Martin Luther King Jr. could have lived and preached non-violence

He used to dream of segregation
How blacks was the enemy
As perceived by many southern white
Dreams of taking over America

To show "those white folks" how it should be done.

He used to dream radical dreams.

He even used to think he would be the one to stop the riot and negotiate the peace.

Then he awakened and dreamed that he'll be a natural leader
to making a speech to marching in the streets to...
I HAVE A DREAM!!!!

By: Patricia
From: Staten Island